The Hon, John W. Griggs, former Attorney-General, was very enthusiastic, and had the following to say:

The result of the play at San Sebastian proves that Capablanca is a chess master of the first rank. We have a right to regard him as a quasi-American, and therefore we are delighted at his success. I hope to see him meet Dr. Lesker in a contest for the world's championship, and considering that the doctor has held the premier rank-for a long while I would like to see Capablanca beat him."

Chancellor Mahlon Pitney of Morristown, N. J. a keen chess enthusiast, expressed himself on the result as follows:

Capablanca's victory in the San Sebastian tournament is a most noteworthy achievementi It is unprecedented that one so young and so comparatively incapacity of the premier leoners from a field of such seasoned veterans. Indeed, so far as I recult, no chess tournament of the past has brought together so many masters of the highest rank, without a single contestant, of whom it could be fairly said that he did not well merit the distinction of being chosen to participate. Capablanca's success in such company proves that he combines soundiness and steadiness with freshness and brilliancy of style.

Interesting statement:

Thave just returned from the home of Paul Morphy, where I was entertained by members of the New Orleans Chess, Checkers and Whist Club most courteously and hospitably in their sumptuous club-house. The Creole element is so strong there that they feel the keenest interest in the young Cuban Capablanca and are watching his triumphant career with great delight. The committee of the intercollegiate chess tournament, with which I have been associated for twenty years, feel deeply gratified that one of the college contestants in chess should now be wresting contestants in chess should now be wresting from the veterans the laurels of interna-tional championship. His provess and skill at this early age augur well for the future, and it does not seem Utopian to believe that he will yet be the world's champion.

Crandall, who was in the box for the youngsters, was more fortunate, although four of the six hits gleaned off his delivery were bunched in the three his delivery were bunched in the third inning. Bergen's contract with the Brooklyn club is a provisional one which calls for a bonus provided he catches good ball during the season. This leaves the club with only two catchers, Erwin and Miller. They have done the bulk of catching in the exhibition games played so far and are in good condition.

The team will leave here to-morrow for Memphis, Tenn, where it will be met by Treasurer Medicus.

There has been talk about this rink for some weeks, but the promoters did not care to make their plans public. Now, however, they say that the new rink will be named the Crescent, and a meeting of those interested will be held in the Crescent Athletic Club next week. The moving spirits are memuers of that club and the first money put into the new undertaking was by two Crescent men.

Several sites have been under consideration, but the one most favored is near the Willink entrance to Prospect Park, which can be reached by seven car lines and consequently is a most accessible place. The new building is to cost about $100,000. The site most favored is 150 feet by 250 feet and the rink will have an ice surface 90 feet by 120 feet. This is considerably larger than the St. Nicholas Skating Rink and a little smaller than the Boston rink, which has not found favor with hockey players because it is too large and shaped so that the teams practising on it have a very untair advantage over visiting teams. Plans have been so far perfected that the promoters have arranged to rent the cold storage privileges to a large firm and have also arranged to rent the amphitheatre to resummer uses.

also arranged to rent the amphitheatre tor summer uses.

The plans for the rink call for a large glass enclosed foyer which will be an attractive feature. Former Manager Mosher of the Clermont Avenue Rink is to be manager of the new rink. In connection with the rink there is to be a large ice making plant. The new company is to be incorporated with a capital of $400,000, of which $250,000 has already been subscribed.

Knocks Out Bedell in Tenth. After having his man badly beaten and being a sure winner on points, Joe Bedell, the Brooklyn lightweight, was knocked out in the tenth round by Leach Cross, the fighting dentist, at the Whirlwind A. C. in Brooklyn last night. Bedell had the most of the rounds to his credit when the tenth round started and the end came so sud-denly that it surprised even Cross's feldenly that it surprised even Cross's fellowers.

After a minute of fighting in the final round Cross put the Brooklyn man down to the mat and when he got up Cross followed him up with a right uppercut which caught Bedell on the point of the chin. Joe went down on his back, where the referee counted him out. The round lasted 1 minute 43 over the sudden victory of their man that they jumped into the ring and carried the fighting deutist to his dressing room.

The annual series of professional hockey matches will begin in the St. Nicholas Skating Rink this evening. Three crack Canadian teams are to visit this city and play for purses aggregating $2,500. These are the Ottawas of Ottawa, winners of the Stanley cup: the Wanderers of Montreal, winners of the championship of 1910, and the Renfrews of Ontario.

the Renfrews of Ontario.

While the Ottawas are the winners of the Canadian title, the two teams which will oppose them are the only ones which won games from them in the Stanley cup series. and their anxiety to settle the mooted question of supremacy was urged upon the management of the St. Nicholas rink the management of the St. Nicholas rink as a reason for arranging a series of games here on neutral ice, where neither team would have an advantage, to decide the title of the world's champions.

The opening games, to-night and tomorrow night, will bring the Wanderers and Renfrews together, the gross score in two nights play to decide which of them will have the honor of meeting the Ottawas, champions, in the final games on Monday and Tuesday nights. So evenly are the three teams matched that the most analytical critic of hockey would not hazard an opinion upon the result of any one of the four games to be played.
